KILLED: Staff Sgt Sharron Elliott

Poppy Day victims back

THE bodies of four British soldiers killed in the Poppy Day Massacre in Iraq were returned home yesterday. The victims, who died in a patrol boat on Sunday, were flown into RAF Brize Norton, Oxon.

They were Staff Sgt Sharron Elliott, 34, from Ipswich, of the Army's Intelligence Corps; Warrant Officer Lee Hopkins, 35, of the Royal Signals, from Wellingborough, Northants,

by BILL MARTIN

and Royal Marines, Cpl Ben Nowak, 27, of Liverpool, and Jason Hylton, 33, of Swadlincote, Derbys.

The body of Kingsman Jamie Hancock, 19, killed in Basra 10 days ago, was also on the flight. Meanwhile, Flight Sgt Gerard Bell, 48, killed in an air crash in Afghanistan, was buried with full military honours yesterday.

ONE'S GETTING ON ONE'S BIKE

Charlie goes green

PRINCE Charles sparked a right royal rumpus yesterday with controversial green plans to force his staff to travel around on bicycles.

Officials have been told to leave their cars behind and rely on pedal power when travelling around London on his behalf.

And despite security risks, he is even looking at commuting to the capital by train from a station near Highgrove, his Gloucestershire home, instead of being chauffeured.

He will also stop using costly royal helicopters and private jets on official engagements whenever possible.

Threat

Charles has been outspoken on the threat of climate change – describing global warming as “terrifying”.

Now the royal train, which some MPs want scrapped because it costs twice the price of private air travel, will be more heavily used.

A single journey for Charles and Camilla last year from London Euston to Burnley, Lancs, cost taxpayers £16,491.

But the return trip by helicopter to Buckingham Palace cost £7,849. Charles has also told aides to find a more environmentally friendly fuel for his fleet of cars.

by PAUL MALLEY

The Prince, 58, wants the new system in place for him and Camilla, 59, by February when they announce the next six months of their planned engagements.

But the plans will embarrass the Queen, 80, and other members of the Royal Family who continue to use helicopters and jets.

The Duke of York, 46, has been called Air Miles Andy because of his frequent use of royal flights, for which his annual bill is £355,942.

Charles has also been criticised for owning a classic sports car and for huge amounts spent on travel.

He has been warned his green travel plans will be difficult to implement, mainly due to the difficulties it would pose for his and Camilla's personal security.

A senior palace figure revealed: “Charles wants to be known as the Green Prince.”

“There is a lot of support for that but there's also quite a bit of hairpulling over this.”

CARING: Attack survivor Josie won her magazine award for her efforts to help release animals back into the wild

Picture: HUMPHREY NEMAR

JOSIE'S TOPS

HAMMER attack survivor Josie Russell has won a Campaigner of the Year award – for her work to free animals into the wild.

Josie, 19, who survived the brutal batterings which killed her mum Lin and sister Megan in Chilenden, Kent, in 1996, was honoured by CosmoGIRL! magazine at London's Hard Rock Café yesterday.

The editor said Josie received the accolade for dedicating her teenage life to the Born Free organisation, which releases wild animals from captivity.

KATE'S NAPPY NEWS!

Beauty is all set for baby No3

EXCLUSIVE
by NIGEL PAULEY
DELIGHTED Kate Price has told close friends she is going to be a mum for the third time.

Kate, alias Jordan, has been unable to keep the good news to herself, even though she is only weeks into the pregnancy.

It comes just four months after she had a miscarriage. Kate, 28, and her husband Peter Andre, 33, had been warned by doctors it might be some time before she was able to conceive again.

Busy

But a pal of the couple revealed last night: "Kate is really excited to find out she's having another baby."

"She's not been able to contain herself and has told a few close friends and her family. We are so happy for them."

Kate has been a busy girl lately, launching her own range of undies for George at Asda. She is also releasing a charity single with Peter, A Whole New World, later this month.

She told the Daily Star this week: "I would like to have at least four more kids."

And singer Pete said all he and Kate wanted for Christmas was a brother or sister for Harvey, four, and 17-month-old Junior.

But the model's spokeswoman Clare Powell insisted last night: "Kate's not pregnant. She is trying for a baby."

JAMES BOND'S super-tight swimming trunks are flying off the shelves as wives and girlfriends splash out to make their men into superspies.

The £55-a-pair blue Grigio Perla trunks are worn by Daniel Craig, 38, on his 007 debut in Casino Royale, which hit British cinemas yesterday.

The only UK stockist, Selfridges in central London, had just two pairs left yesterday afternoon after publicity shots of Craig emerging from the sea in them were published.

by LAURA NEIL

Spokeswoman Lucy Willis said: "I'm not sure the trunks can transform just any bloke into James Bond. But at least guys have eight months to prepare for summer!"

DEAN'S BUNGLE

He owns up to fancying THREE girls

EXCLUSIVE

■ from PETER DYKE in Oz
EX-EASTENDER Dean Gaffney has committed a jungle booby – by admitting he'd love to bed THREE I'm A Celeb babes.

The former soap star left long-term girlfriend Sarah Burge back home.

But that has not stopped him admitting he has already got the hots for "jungle Janes" Myleene, 28, Lauren, 39, and Faith, 62.

In an exclusive interview with the Daily Star before heading into the Aussie outback, the randy 28-year-old let slip: "Lauren Booth looks good for her age."

"From the pictures I've seen she is attractive – as is Myleene Klass."

"So if I'm feeling down it'll be good to see Myleene wandering by! And as for Faith Brown, I'm attracted to women with large assets!"

Last night fans saw Dean battle it out with ex-Emmerdale star Malandra Burrows, 40, to land a place on the show.

Viewers were asked to vote for one of them to do a nasty live Bush Tucker trial called Bush Spa.

It involved enduring a steam bath with rats, having a hairwash with cockroaches and flies, tanning in maggots, dipping hands in bees and green ants, and sticking feet in a bowl of crabs. But there was also a prize.

Loser

Whoever got chosen for the trial went into camp as the 11th official contestant to give the gang a surprise.

Amazingly, Dean – who played Robbie Jackson in EastEnders – claims he signed up for the show to try to change his public image as a bed-hopping womaniser.

He wants viewers to see a different side to him from the gossip column image.

Dean said: "I never really had the right to reply when I was on EastEnders, and could never really speak out."

"But the white van man out there thinks Dean Gaffney is a cokehead who parties every night with Page 3 models."

"The truth is I'm a father of two girls and I want people to know the real me."

His saucy gaffe in confessing that he fancies three of the show's women is set to earn him an ear-bashing from 29-year-old partner Sarah – and from their 10-year-old twins, Charlotte and Chloe.

Dean admitted: "My daughters said to me before I flew out: 'Don't embarrass us.'"

"They also suggested they should change the name of the programme to I'm a Nobody Get Me Out of Here!"

Malandra insisted she won't be having a fumble in the jungle with any of the men because she has a boyfriend, Ben.

But she left fans wondering what she might fancy when she teased: "There are a lot of good looking grrrls in there!"

Malandra isn't looking forward to the jungle creatures but joked: "There will be rats and snakes – and I've had ex-boyfriends that have been worse!"

● I'm A Celebrity is on ITV1 tonight at 9pm.

■ PHINA ORUCHE says Jan Leeming is moaning all the time because she's not getting any nookie.

She said: "She is single and on her own. When you are more mature you need someone. And she needs someone. She's told us there is a man she's in love with."

■ PHINA also claims Americans reckon Angelina Jolie is bonkers. She said: "They think of her as nuts."

■ SAUCY Faith Brown wants to give Jason Donovan a rub-down.

She told him: "If you're a good boy, I'll give you a little massage."

■ TOBY and Lauren decided to prepare for a Bush Tucker Trial by eating worms. It also helped quell their hunger pains.

■ MYLEENE got excited and thought the camp had been invaded by Hell's Angels. She said: "I heard motorbikes. It was very exciting."

■ DAVID revealed he wants to die and be reborn as Toby. He admitted: "It's because he's so cool."

■ FAITH and David are the camp's biggest snorers. A show source said: "The noise they make while they're asleep would keep the deadliest snake away."

■ DAVID has admitted he dyes his hair black – but Jan told him the dye showed how bald he is.

She added: "One word of advice – don't shave. You look more butch."

■ LIZA has entered the jungle – but David need not worry. It's not his ex-wife Ms Minnelli but a small lizard which Toby nicknamed Liza.

SUITS YOU: Jan and Scott are excited after their successful Tree Top Trial

Balloon-blow for lonely Jan

JAN Leeming and Scott Henshall won four meals for the camp after braving the Tree Top Terror Bushtucker Trial dressed in daft yellow bodysuits.

The unlikely duo were forced to work together on a high wire hundreds of feet above the jungle. Jan, 64, had to move along the top of the tightrope on a wheel while Scott, 31, dangled below her on a ladder, trying to grab balloons.

Scott managed to bag five but Jan let one go – losing them a dinner. She whinged: “The story of my life – the one that got away.”

Scott bitched: “She’s a fish out of water. I joked about a cameraman going up my bum and she called me ‘disgusting’. She’s not my mother!”

STRETCHING IT: Scott climbs into a suit, left, and hits the trees

DAVID

Still the most entertaining by far. Lately, he’s been ranting about the dunny and his hair – and it’s to dye for!

MYLEENE

Helped bring a treasure chest full of tea and biscuits back to camp. She is brew-tiful!

TOBY

He is enjoying attention from Jan and loves singing with David. A happy camper who is set to stay.

SCOTT

Better effort in his Bushtucker Trial and willing to put Jan in her place. Will need to put in more effort, though, to be crowned Queen of the jungle.

LAUREN

Not sure what sister Cherie and PM Tony make of her actions so far, but she won’t win any votes with her singing and attempts at being hip.

JASON

Rumours that he’ll ditch jungle to sing with Kylie on stage in Oz. Maybe they could do the Locomotion round the camp fire.

FAITH

For a comedienne, this mega-boobed star is failing to raise many laughs. In fact she’s doing a pretty good impression of a middle-aged bore!

MATT

Still playing the role of a moody teenager. Maybe he’s feeling left out because the other guys are all pals.

PHINA

She thinks Angelina Jolie is a fruitcake, but she’s no brainbox. She didn’t even know Tony Blair is quitting as PM.

JAN

Still moaning and desperately flirting with Toby. He’s young enough to be your son, love!

Swansong for Michael

THE King of Pop was making extraordinary excuses yesterday for his comeback flop.

Michael Jackson says he wasn't due to sing at the World Music Awards.

So how come organisers provided him with an enormous choir, a band and a £250,000 fee?

Next thing you know, he'll be claiming he's never had cosmetic surgery.

The reality even Jacko can't escape is that he's plunged to a new low with his shambolic performance.

He's just about coped with the many paedophile allegations swirling around him.

He's ignored taunts about his increasingly freakish appearance.

And he's dealt with the repeated financial crises that his heavy spending has sparked.

The one thing he's clung on to during all that turmoil is his status as one of showbiz's biggest stars.

But now even his career is in meltdown with the fans booing him off stage.

Declines and falls don't get more dramatic than this.

Let Kim be firm lesson

ROD STEWART'S daughter Kimberley has experienced the downside of having a party-animal lifestyle.

She developed a serious liver disease at the age of just 27.

Rod has revealed doctors blamed the illness on too much alcohol.

Kimberley's plight should act as a warning to Britain's young binge drinkers.

Twenty teenagers a day in the UK are now being diagnosed with drink-related health problems.

That amounts to a worrying 20% rise in just six years.

We're all for youngsters having a good time, but they should read our story today on Page 9 about Kimberley.

For your health's sake, don't overdo it!

Dean gaffes

SEX-MAD Dean Gaffney says he wants to bed I'm A Celebrity's Myleene.

But he's also got the hots for big-bottomed Lauren and even 62-year-old Faith.

We're surprised the one-time EastEnders didn't try it on with Well 'Ard.

It looks like the end of the road

JACKO VOICE AS RAVAGED AS HIS FACE

Picture: JONATHAN BUCKMASTER

ALL OVER: Jacko leaves hotel yesterday

POP weirdo Michael Jackson's music career was in meltdown last night after he lost his famous voice.

Wacko Jacko, 48, looked finished following his pathetic comeback performance at the World Music Awards - where he struggled to sing just two lines.

And he couldn't hit the right notes even then.

Event organisers desperately tried to gloss over the fallen superstar's embarrassing flop by claiming his microphone was cut off.

But music insiders dismissed the "cover up" and said traumatic child abuse allegations, disfiguring plastic surgery and financial struggles have finally caught up with him.

Recluse

Experts fear the pressure of trying to resurrect his flagging career after living as a virtual recluse has left the hitmaker's voice as ravaged as his face.

Sources at Jacko's luxury London hotel told how the Thriller singer broke down in tears after returning from the awards, seemingly realising his career could be over.

One industry source said: "Throughout all his problems Michael has always been able to count on his musical genius."

"But judging by that performance he can no longer even get through one song. And if

by IAIN BURCHELL and LIZZIE CATT his singing voice has gone it has to be the end for him.

"He looks a shadow of his old self and it's hard to see how he can carry on."

Furious music fans booed Jacko off stage at Earls Court in his disastrous first live performance since being acquitted of child molestation charges last year.

They were outraged by his limp attempt at singing his 1985 charity single We Are The World - which had cost organisers more than £500,000.

Fuming fans described his voice as "weak and wobbly" as he tried to sing the chorus before leaving the rest of the song to a teenage choir.

Jacko was said to have locked himself away in his dressing room before going on stage, and only emerged after R&B babe Beyoncé urged him: "Don't let your fans down."

Awards organisers Marcor International yesterday insisted the chart-topper had been ready to put on a show-stopping performance to reward his loyal fans until he had the plug pulled on him.

Spokesman Julius Just claimed Earls Court cut off Jacko's mic to observe a noise curfew.

He said: "The venue cut the sound at 11pm because that is when the licence ends."

"But how can they cut off the world's greatest pop star?"

"Michael is bitterly disappointed. He has never been cut off before."

"He was really up for it. He's happy, fit and strong."

"He was making some of his special dance moves when he picked up his Diamond Award earlier and seemed to be psyching himself up for his show."

"His voice sounded really strong to me and he stayed very cool when his mic was cut off. Just telling fans: 'I love you, I love you.'"

But an Earls Court spokeswoman denied the King of Pop had been cut short.

She said: "It is simply not something we would do."

"It was the organiser or promoter who would have had control of the microphones."

"From my understanding, he stopped singing."

An insider at the five-star Hempel Hotel in Bayswater, west London, told how the emotion seemed to get to Jacko after the awards.

The source said: "Once he got into the hotel he appeared to start sobbing."

A music website last night claimed Jacko's performance was "destined to be a shambles" - as one of its reporters managed to slip on stage as part of his choir, despite being unable to sing or dance.

Shocked

The reporter claimed the choir had no rehearsals with Jacko and didn't know if they were going out on stage until the last moment.

Onlookers have been shocked by the star's appearance, with his face looking close to falling apart after years of surgery.

Sources close to Jacko fear he has never fully recovered from the strain of being accused of abusing teenage cancer victim Gavin Arvizo - even though he was later cleared by a jury.

Clinical psychologist Ron Bracey said: "It's very possible all the pressure Michael has been under could take its toll on his voice."

"His confidence must be shaken and he looks to be literally falling apart."

Jacko, who pocketed a £250,000 appearance fee, completely booked out the Hempel with his massive entourage for four days at £50,000 a day.

The oddball star tried to forget his troubles yesterday by taking his children Prince Michael, nine, Paris, eight, and Blanket, four, to a matinee performance of the Mary Poppins musical in London's West End.

SOB STORY: Jacko in tears again as he is whisked away from the Mary Poppins show last night

Yup...he really is Bad now

by CARL STROUD

MICHAEL Jackson's career lies in tatters today.

The King Of Pop lost his crown in spectacular fashion at the dismal World Music Awards.

I've never attended a more shoddy, badly-organised and poorly-produced event.

Thousands of fans booed Wacko's pathetic performance - and they were absolutely right to do so.

Singing one chorus of 20-year-old hit We Are The World was a total insult to everyone present.

The howls of derision were deafening as soon as the "performance" started.

Petrified

Petrified Jacko refused to go on stage until well into the second verse.

And when he eventually decided to add his vocals to the booming backing track, the howls of incredulity were clearly audible.

The 48-year-old's voice, once one of the most honeyed sounds in the pop music pantheon, is quite clearly knackered.

A tragic, weak, powerless shell of its former glory.

If Jackson thinks he can win back the thousands of fans who have deserted him with wretched public appearances like this, he's still evidently living in Never Neverland.

JACKO'S WACKOLIKES

Fans wild for singer

by LIZZIE CATT

CRAZED Michael Jackson fans last night launched an astonishing attack on the paparazzi - smashing two cameras and punching one photographer in the face.

The die-hard followers had been waiting outside London's Prince Edward Theatre, where Jacko had been watching Mary Poppins with his three children.

The ugly scenes erupted as the star emerged, and one onlooker said: "It was incredible. They flew at the snappers, who tried to protect their cameras but just ended up getting trashed."

"And one of them lunged at a photographer and punched him in the face."

Jacko fans had earlier caused chaos as he emerged from his luxury hotel.

Hysterical followers - some of whom camped outside for three days - leapt over barriers in a bid to get closer to the star.

One man was even hurled back into TV crews by security guards.

And officials say British punters have the best chance of landing the whopping prize.

Tickets

They have been snapping up tickets at a rate of £1,000-worth every second.

And that means more tickets have been sold in the UK than any of the eight other participating countries. A Camelot spokesman said: "The greater the number of tickets sold in the UK, the more potential winning combinations UK players will have covered."

"We'd love to hand our biggest cheque to a UK winner."

'School row led to blaze deaths'

by JOHN MAHONEY

A TEENAGE girl and her mum and dad murdered two other parents in an arson attack, a court heard yesterday.

They agreed to set their victims' home alight after a petty squabble at school, a jury was told.

Natalie Connor, 18, began a hate campaign against 16-year-old Lucy Cochrane and her parents after a playground fallout.

And she and mum Jane, 39, talked dad Michael, 39, into burning down the Cochrane's house as they slept, it was alleged.

The dad is said to have poured petrol through the letterbox to start the blaze in Baguley, Manchester.

Firefighters said it was so fierce the temperature reached 1,000C in two minutes.

Burns

Lucy's shop worker mum Maureen, 45, was killed in the flames and her airport baggage handler husband Alex, 54, died in hospital.

Lucy was carried out by fire crews, who found her unconscious under a bed.

Alistair Webster QC, prosecuting, told Manchester Crown Court there was an "obsessive" campaign against Lucy, who had learning difficulties, and her family.

"It is that obsession which lies at the heart of this tragedy," he added.

The Connors, of Wythenshawe, Manchester, deny murdering the Cochrane parents and attempting to murder Lucy on January 12. The trial continues.

Big quiz pays off

THE policeman leading the cash-for-honours probe hinted last night that there could be further arrests and charges.

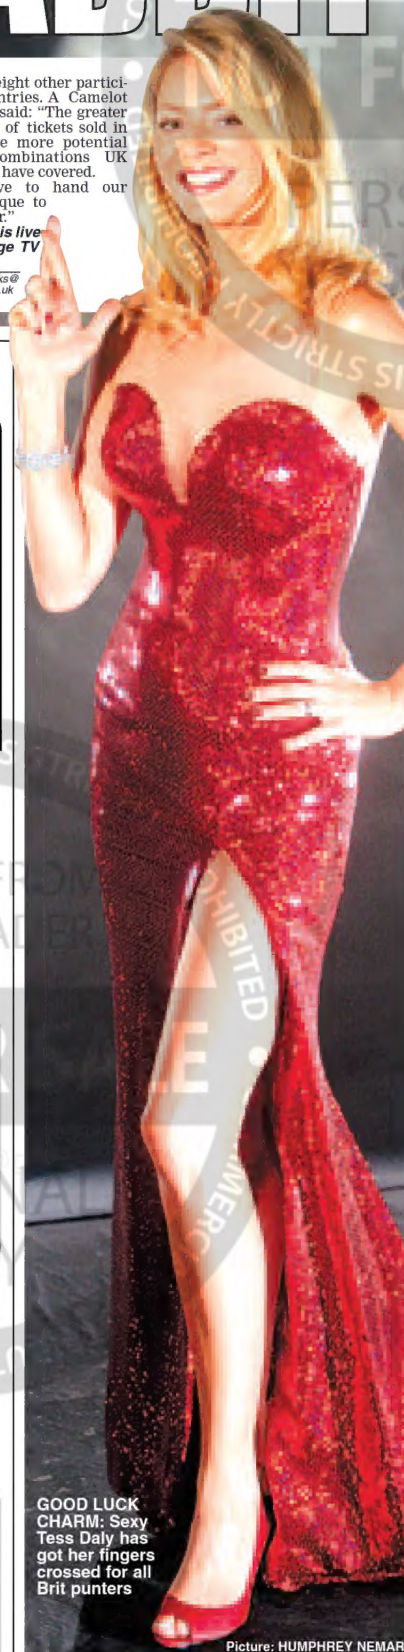

Scotland Yard's Assistant Commissioner John Yates told MPs the investigation had gained "significant and valuable material" after interviewing 90 people, adding that it was in its "final stages".

He has investigated whether party donors received honours in return. All involved deny any wrongdoing.

Several of Tony Blair's close advisers have been quizzed, including Lord Levy and former Health Secretary Alan Milburn.

ROD'S GIRL KIM RUINS HER LIVER THROUGH BOOZE

..and she's only 27

ROCKER Rod Stewart's daughter Kimberley's wild lifestyle has left her with serious liver disease.

Her dad has revealed she is suffering from the same condition that cost George Best his life.

And Rod told how she had been forced to ditch the booze to stop the illness destroying her liver.

Worried doctors ordered the party-loving 27-year-old to clean up her act and she has not touched a drop of alcohol for three months.

But Rod, 61, says that when he read her the riot act over her antics, Kimberley simply blamed the fact that she was half-Scottish.

The chart veteran, famed for his own boozing and womanising back in the 1970s, said Kimberley was convinced she could take all the drinking because of her roots.

He said: "She just discovered that she had a very serious liver illness from drinking too much."

"She said to me: 'Dad, I'm half-Scottish - I thought I was allowed to drink a lot.' I said: 'No, darling, it doesn't work like that.'"

The revelation about his daughter's liver disease is an added blow for Rod, who has already had to confront son Sean's addiction.

Now 26, Sean has been battling booze and drugs since his teenage years and ended up having a series of brushes with the law.

Kimberley has the same condition that led to the death of football legend Best, who died on November 25 last year at the age of 59.

But Rod, who was awarded a place in the UK Music Hall of Fame earlier this week, says his girl is bat-

by KATIE BEGLEY

ting back. He said: "She hasn't had a drink or cigarette for three months and feels great."

Last night he insisted it was a temporary problem, adding: "Kimberley had an inflamed liver and she's perfectly fine now."

Rod is also lending a helping hand to another of his daughters - Ruby, 19. He said she's desperate to follow in his footsteps.

And Rod, who recently appeared as a guest judge on ITV's The X Factor, is helping her achieve that dream.

He said: "Ruby's got genuine talent. We're trying to put a band together for her, but she wants every member to look like Brad Pitt!"

Stupid

Speaking to a US magazine, Rod said his children meant the world to him. Last year he celebrated the birth of his seventh child, Alastair Wallace Stewart, with model Penny Lancaster, 35.

But he admitted he was worried that the youngest of his brood - including Renée, 13, and Liam, 10 - will never fly the family nest after he built them a swanky new pad on his Los Angeles estate.

He said: "We built this 7,000sq ft house for my children. It's got sunken baths, walk-in closets and marble floors. 'As it was going up, I was thinking: 'Oh you stupid bastard! I've got a feeling they'll be living with me in their 30s and beyond.'"

Rod is touring with his latest album Still The Same - Great Rock Classics Of Our Time, a collection of covers from the 60s and 70s.

Swanky venue has ghost

HOLLYWOOD couple Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes last night kicked off their huge wedding bash.

A group of superstar pals dined with them in Italy to launch a whole weekend of celebrations.

Alien-worshiper Tom, 44, may well be hoping for supernatural forces to bless his marriage on Saturday.

But Kate, 27, might be praying the resident spook stays away from the castle near Rome where they are expected to tie the knot. Odescałchi Castle is said to be haunted by duchess Isabella de Medici - strangled by her husband after marrying there in 1560.

Yesterday stars including Jennifer Lopez, 37, and Brooke Shields, 41, flew into Rome for the showbiz wedding of the year.

Other guests at the £5million bash will include George Clooney, 45, Brad Pitt, 42, John Travolta, 52, Michael Douglas, 62, and his wife Catherine Zeta-Jones, 37.

And Katie has already had the blessing of Tom's ex-girlfriend Penelope Cruz, 32.

She sent 100 white roses to the pair's suite at Rome's Hassler Hotel, where they are preparing for the big day.

Dozens of designer suitcases were flown into the airport, crammed with essentials for the wedding.

But there was near disaster when some precious items were dropped on the runway. Katie's hoping they didn't include her wedding gown, designed by Giorgio Armani, 72, one of the VIP guests at the bash.

News aces get a licence to thrill

THE BBC's news team is on an undercover mission to raise money galore tonight on Children in Need.

The caring hacks with a Licence to Thrill will recreate classic scenes from James Bond movies for the Pudsey appeal.

BBC newsreaders - including Dermot Murnaghan, 48, Fiona Bruce, 42, Sophie Raworth, 38, Kate Silverton, 36, and Natasha Kaplinsky, 35 - are all lending a hand.

Sexy

The team is determined to cash in on new Bond Daniel Craig's Casino Royale movie release for their good causes.

Irishman Dermot, Bill Turnbull, 44, and Jeremy Bowen, 46, all have a go at playing 007 while the girls slip into sexy dresses to play Bond girls.

A BBC insider said: "We reckon the viewers will love this."

Other celebrities are doing their bit, too.

■ by GARY NICKS

Manchester United and England striker Wayne Rooney, 21, is among a string of stars who have donated teddy bears for sale on eBay.

Fearne Cotton, 23, who is co-presenting the show, also parted with her Ted along with Rooney's manager Sir Alex Ferguson, 64, Spice Girl Emma Bunton, 30, and World Cup-winning England rugby ace Matt Dawson, 33.

A charity spokesman said: "Bidding is expected to be frenzied, with givers pledging hundreds of pounds to charity - and getting a famous bear into the bargain."

"The celebrities are also calling on all other Brits to unearth any unloved bears and sell them for charity this week."

"Research shows that, from Paddington to Pudsey and Winnie to Rupert, we are a nation of bear obsessives."

GIRL KILLED BY DIET OF APPLES AND TOMATOES

Tragic model dies at just 6st

by GERARD COUZENS

A STICK-THIN model has died of anorexia after living on a diet of just apples and tomatoes.

Ana Carolina Reston, 21, was 5ft 7in tall but weighed only six stone.

The Brazilian beauty had been in hospital for three weeks with a kidney ailment and was due to fly to Paris for a photoshoot next day.

Relatives told how emaciated Ana had seen specialists about her eating disorder but refused to admit she was ill. Her cousin Geise Strauss, 30, who Ana stayed with between modelling shoots abroad, revealed: "She didn't like eating what we ate."

"When she did eat, she ate very little and recently she'd go to the bathroom and make herself sick as soon as she left the table. She liked apples and tomatoes but that was about it."

Worried

Lica Kohirausch, owner of Ana's agency L'Equipe, said: "We brought Ana back to Brazil after she did a catalogue for Giorgio Armani and a representative rang me to say she was too thin."

"It worried me, coming from a professional used to dealing with models."

Tragic Ana, of São Paulo, is the second model to die this year. Luisel Ramos, 22, died of a heart attack during a fashion show in Uruguay in August after living on lettuce leaves and Diet Coke.

Her death also comes after skinny models were banned from this year's Madrid fashion show.

Viviane Setti, 42, mum of Ana's boyfriend Bruno, 19, said: "Ana's death should serve as a wake-up call about the dangers of anorexia. There's nothing glamorous about an ending like hers."

Hero's return for Doc Chris

FORMER Doctor Who Christopher Eccleston has landed a leading role in a smash-hit American TV series.

The 42-year-old actor will join science-fiction drama Heroes after the Time Lord's return was a huge success in the US.

An insider said: "Chris is a fantastic actor and we're delighted to have him on board." Heroes is about people who realise they have superpowers.

And they must unite to stop a nuclear explosion destroying New York.

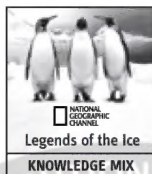

SCI-FI ROLE: Chris

Killer

Bosses have refused to reveal Eccleston's role - but he could be mystery serial killer Syler.

The insider said: "No one has seen Syler and Christopher could be perfect as the bad guy."

HEALTH FEARS FOR SCARRED LINDSAY

ALL CUT UP: The bizarre scratches are clearly visible on Lindsay's arm at the awards show

Riddle of bizarre cuts

LOHAN behold - what are those unsavoury scratches all over Lindsay's arms?

The Tinseltown twiglet, 20, sparked fresh fears for her health when she removed her jacket at the World Music Awards to reveal disturbing scratches and scars.

La Lohan kept her thick fur coat on despite the unspeakable heat when she hosted the Earls Court ceremony.

But when her deodorant started to let her down, Miss L unwillingly bared her arms, revealing scratches on her left wrist and what appeared to be a figure-of-eight shaped burn on her right forearm.

Our man with the Band-Aid said: "No wonder she kept her coat on! Her arms were a complete mess."

"It looked extremely painful, especially what seemed to be a large burn mark. Goodness knows how she got those mysterious marks. But they must have really hurt."

Lindsay impressed music fans with her role as host at the Earls Court bash. But, insiders, claimed she'd been a bag of nerves in the build-up to the big event.

The freckled fox's New York-based spokeswoman Leslie Sloane-Zelnik offered an explanation for the scratches.

"Lindsay suffered a little fall and took a tumble into a bush before she left for England," she said.

"Lindsay's just so unlucky. I've no idea how she fell into the bush or what she was doing."

Bandages

"But her arms got cut up pretty bad and she needed a tetanus injection."

"She's been wearing bandages but finally decided to take them off because the scars had healed a little."

"I can understand people being concerned about Lindsay's scratches because they do look quite nasty - but it is all perfectly innocent."

Which is the first time the words "innocent" and "Lindsay" have shared a sentence.

Rock on, Tommy!

FASHION designer Tommy Hilfiger, 55, and girlfriend Dee Ciccioppo, 39, made the most of letting their hair down.

The kookie couple were all over each other and behaved like kids.

An onlooker said: "Both Tommy and Dee enjoyed canoodling and you'd have thought they were lovesick teenagers."

Ahhhh.

CARPENTERS were still building VIP tables 15 minutes before a glitzy event at London's Earls Court attended by Elle Macpherson, 43, Paris Hilton, 25, and Jade Jagger, 35. But they still partied well in the end. Paris even forgot to meet her mum and dad at the Paper nightclub.

HAVE YOU GOT SOME JUICY GOSSIP FOR US?

AT THE

HUSH HUSH

WHICH showbiz couple got down and dirty with each other in the ladies' loos at an after-party? And ways before being thrown out their wicked door. It's no wonder they couldn't contain themselves. The kinky couple regularly watch other people romp and have a serious sex addiction.

WE didn't realise there was a funeral taking place at the same time as the music awards. Our mistake. It seems the only thing Peaches, 17, was mourning was the death of her fashion sense. Sister Pixie, 16, showed her big sis how to rock the sexy goth look.

Nelly has Kate expectations

NELLY Furtado is poised to follow in the footsteps of model Kate Moss and work for Topshop.

And the super-sexy singer, 27, who looked luscious in this satin dress, right, was chatting to the high street store's boss Sir Philip Green, 54, for more than an hour at the official after-party for the World Music Awards.

The brunette babe had earlier performed at London's Earls Court and nabbed a gong for best pop/rock. It was a deserved accolade for Nelly after the success of her album Loose, which was released in summer and gave her two hit singles Maneater and Promiscuous.

And she could barely leave Sir Philip's side at the cool Paper club.

Our mole in the VIP area said: "Nelly was chatting away to Sir Philip and greeted him like an old pal."

Mega

"She was bowled over as he was obviously flattering her about her performance. He was so enamoured it looks increasingly likely she will do design work or model for Topshop."

Kate, 32, has been paid mega-money to design clothes for the store.

TOP DEAL: Kate Moss designs clothes for Sir Philip's store

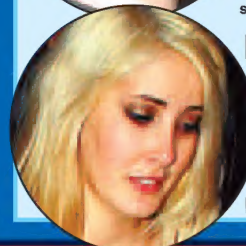

BOURNE TO BUST MATT

JAMES Bourne was his usual casual self when out on the lash after the World Music Awards in London.

And the 23-year-old Son Of Dork and ex-Busted star, left, seemed smitten with a mystery blonde, below left.

Earlier in the evening, he told us he's so embarrassed former Busted band member Matt Willis, 23, is starring in reality telly show I'm A Celebrity, he can barely watch. But he said he will text the show to try and get Matt out.

JAY-Z and Beyoncé Knowles may not be so Crazy in Love any more.

The generously-bottomed diva, 25, thanked everybody and their dog in a lengthy acceptance speech for her World's Best R&B Artist gong.

But jaws dropped when she failed to mention her bling-tastic squeeze Jay, 36.

IT'S lucky Keisha Buchanan refused to get legless at the boozy bash - it'd be a shame to waste those pins. The Sugababe, 22, is on a sickeningly successful health kick and said: "I'm trying to get my pals to be healthy too." The saintly babe even managed to snub the cocktails and canapés at the after-party.
